Bina Puri to build fishery complex

JOINT VENTURE: Project duration for RM247.8m LKIM centre in Kuching is 36 months

KUALA LUMPUR

BINA Puri Holdings Bhd is set to plan, design and build the Fisheries Development Authority of Malaysia (LKIM) complex in Kuching, Sarawak, at a contract value of RM247.84 million.

The company, via its subsidiary Bina Puri Construction Sdn Bhd, has entered into a contract agreement with Blessed Builders Sdn Bhd and Pengkalan Ikan Central Sdn Bhd (PIC) to build the complex to create a buoyant fishery industry by integrating the upstream and downstream economic activities of the industry into a one-stop centre.

Bina Puri group managing director Tan Sri Tee Hock Seng said the new LKIM complex will serve a large number of fishermen from the western coastal region of the state compared with the current facility at Bintawa inside the Sarawak river barrage where vessel movement is restrictive.

"This is yet another major project for Bina Puri, where we are actively participating in building the economic and social progress of Sarawak," he said in a statement yesterday.

The facilities for the LKIM fishery complex include a marketing hall, a fishermen market, an administrative block, a multi-purpose hall, the central utility building, a canteen, a surau, a fish box storage area and a jetty.

Tee also said with the fishery complex, the Sarawak government is able to spearhead the development of its fishery-related industry and to improve the quality of products emanating from the state.

"We see a complex that will also provide employment opportunities and improve the overall living standard of local communities as well as its surrounding areas through the fishery-related industry," he added.

The LKIM project would entail Bina Puri Construction to undertake piling, building, mechanical and electrical, civil and infrastructure and external, and marina works, as well as landscaping, signage and furniture for the concessionaires.

The company has announced that the commencement date for the construction of the fishery complex will take effect after the financial close between PIC and their financier has been determined.

The project duration for the complex is 36 months.

Bina Puri said the latest award of LKIM project will raise the group's unbuilt book order to RM1.93 billion and will not have any material effect on the net assets and earnings of the Bina Puri group for the financial year ending December 31 2014.
